Nine pages built on the one thing that makes cats different: they hide illness, and the only way to notice early is to have written the ordinary month down. Records and numbers, a weight log, the litter tray as a diary, the enrichment an indoor cat needs, and the page you leave out for the sitter.

This guide

Letter + A4 · colour + ink-saving mono · 9 pages each the same pages without form fields
the numbers, on the fridge, before you need them
printing and filling in, on one page

2 TYPE ON IT

Open a file ending in -fillable.pdf in Adobe Acrobat Reader (free) or a tablet app and type. Tick the boxes with a click. Save a copy per cat – pages 1 to 7 are about one animal, and a second cat wants its own file rather than a shared one.

3 OR PRINT AND WRITE

The -print.pdf files are the same nine pages without fields. Two of them are meant to leave the folder: page 2 goes on the fridge with the out-of-hours number filled in, and page 8 gets left on the kitchen table for whoever is feeding the cat while you are away.

4 PRINT IT WELL

- Paper: plain A4 or US Letter, 90–120 gsm
- Scale: 100% / Actual size – never “Fit to page”
- One copy of pages 1–7 per cat; pages 8 and 9 can be shared
- Saving ink? The mono kit is the same layout in graphite only

5 WHAT THIS IS, AND WHAT IT IS NOT

It is a record book, made by a designer. It is not veterinary advice, not a diagnosis, and not a substitute for phoning your practice. The signs listed on page 2 are the short version of what emergency vets ask people to come in for – they are not complete, and a cat that seems wrong to you is reason enough to call. Fill in the out-of-hours number today, while nothing is happening: it is usually a different practice from your own, and the moment you need it is the moment you cannot look it up.
